

Topics and Questions for the Admission Procedure to Doctoral Studies in the Field of Study
Public Health

1. Public health worldwide, particularly in low-income countries, within the European Union, and in Slovakia: objectives and current challenges
2. Research in public health: major areas of scientific research, general principles of scientific methodology, and specific research methodologies applied in public health
3. Critical analysis of a professional publication in a foreign language (English or German)
4. Sources of professional publications and methods for their evaluation
5. Quantitative risk assessment in epidemiology and clinical research
6. Development and design of projects in the field of public health
7. Public health policies and strategies in the Slovak Republic, European Union countries, and globally, with particular emphasis on low-income countries