

PhDr. Zuzana Bárđyová, Ph.D., MPH. – works as an assistant professor and administrator of the Department of Laboratory Medicine. At the same time, she works as a mammography screening data analyst at the National Oncology Institute. She teaches the following subjects: Biostatistics, Data analysis, Biophysics, Nuclear medicine, Radiation protection and Measurement of environmental factors, Basics of prevention, and others. Scientific research activity focusses mainly on the issues of mammographic screening and radiation protection (monitoring the radiation load of patients and medical professionals during medical exposures; evaluating the potential risks associated with medical exposure). She is a member of two working groups of the Commission of the Ministry of Health of the Slovak Republic for quality assurance in radiology, radiation oncology, and nuclear medicine; in the field of mammography and in the field of interventional radiology. She is also a member of SK MTP and other SLS professional societies (SRS: SKVIR, SKVR, SKS, SMS, SEBI).
