

She studied virology at the Faculty of Natural Sciences of Comenius University, where, as part of her rigorous (RNDr.) studies, she focused on the research of the hepatitis B virus in the population of blood donors. She worked at the National Transfusion Service of the Slovak Republic as a quality system coordinator, specializing in the management and optimization of processes in transfusion medicine. Since January 2025, she has been working as an Assistant Lecturer at the Department of Public Health of Trnava University in Trnava, where she is engaged in teaching activities and is also an external PhD student at the department.

Bachelor's thesis: Human Papillomaviruses

Master's thesis: Murine Gammaherpesvirus 68 in the Tick Dermacentor reticulatus in Slovakia

Rigorous thesis: Hepatitis B Virus in the Population of Blood Donors

Year of birth: 1994

Year of Bachelor's degree: 2016

Year of Master's degree: 2018

Year of RNDr. degree: 2022